Principal's Message

"We want a state of things which allows every man the largest liberty compatible with the liberty of every other man."

--Ralph Waldo Emerson

Mr. Emerson captured the essence of democracy with this statement. We, as Americans, certainly strive to achieve the ideals of justice for all, free speech within the limits of law, in addition to the concept of universal education and peace and goodwill among men.

Each one of us, perhaps in some small way, contributes to the success or failure of these ideals. We believe we have provided you with many opportunities here at Trexler to experience and to develop a deeper appreciation for these things so highly valued in our society.

We believe that each of you has some spot to fill in our society. Keep in mind that there is a proper place for laws in our society, but do not lose sight of the importance of being a responsible person. Robert Kennedy said that we are unable to develop solutions to our problems with a law or in an instant, but that we can unite laws and men in our quest to fulfill the pledge America makes to all men.

The future of our country depends upon the fullest development of each individual. Each of us must have an interest in eliminating social evils as well as those activities which have prevented our society from achieving the ideals of democracy in the past.

Let us not forget that we move in that same effortless stream that began with our forefathers. Let us not lose that sense of individual responsibility which is said to be the last best hope that a nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to equality can long endure.
